[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Pottstown, Pa., March 18.—Co-operation of churches, irrespective of denominations, in waging battle with organized evil, such as the liquor traffic, was strongly urged by Bishop Joseph F. Berry at the opening here today of the 127th annual session of the Philadelphia conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, over which he presided. He declared that all Christians were face to face with the "greatest fight against organized evil they

Bishop Berry said he had every reason to feel encouraged, for the "entire country was in the midst of the greatest revival of the faith it has known since 1856." He expressed the opinion that the Presbyterian pastor, the Baptist clergymen, the Lutheran preachers, the clergy of all denominations should stand "shoulder to shoulder against the works of the devil as they appear in the liquor and other nefarious and evil influences, which have so often sapped our young manhood and our young womanhood and cast their blight upon our homes."

The Lehigh road operates a railroad system with main lines aggregating approximately 1,400 miles in length, and extending from New York and Perth Amboy, N. J., through the States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, into the anchracite coal regions, and from there to Rochester and Buffailo and to the Great Lakes. It also controls a line of steamships plying upon the Great Lakes, connecting with the Lehigh road at Buffailo.

According to the brief, the road has outstanding $65.501.500 of common stock; 1,216,134 shares of $50 each par value, its funded debt is about $85, $40,000 and its assets are about $85, $000,000.
